Finance Told By Ex-Cashier

MORRIS, III., Oct. 13.—Frank M. Spohr, cashier and later auditor of the failed La Salle Street Trust and Savings back of Chicago, told a remarkable story of alleged "high finance" in the conduct of the institution.

He was a witness in the trial of Charles B. Munday, vice-president of the institution, whose case for alleged conspiracy in wrecking the bank was brought here on a change of venue from Cook county. Spohr told about the transfer Spohr told about the transfer of the bank from a national to a state institution. In this transaction he said that with assets of $62,000 himself, he had given an unsecured note for $125,000 in common with nine others to create the capital stock of $1,256,-600 on which the state bank was organized.

Mr. Spohr told how a great part of the alleged worthless and part of the alleged worthless and questionable paper, held by the bank when it falled, had been forced upon it by the use of overdraft privileges enjoyed by William Lorimer, president of the bank and former United States senator; by Charles B. Munday, the vice-president, and by members of their families and the president of their families and their fami bers of their families and those connected with the business firms with which Lorimer and Munday were concerned.

The Phillies still were due a turn at but but there was not a soul among the more than twenty thousand crowd in the park who did not know that the series was over and that the Roston Sox had won another clampionship of the souris—four sames to one. Flustered, but still flighting, the standard bearers of the National league went through the formality of completing the last manig but not a man could get to first. This has same of the series was one to stir the blood. It was a faitle from the lump with the issue eter in the balance. Twice it seemed that Philadelphia had a winning margin but twice the Red Sex hammered their way to a tie. Priling up three runs in the cighth and night innings they get the decision 5 to 4.

The Clouting Chorus.

The Clouting Chorus.

It was a batting bee in which the Phillies got an early start. Their big war clubs were ringing merrity when the Red Sox determined to take a hand in the affray. From that time followed there was a crashing, cloutsing chorus that sounded a sweet symplecty in the ears of the fans. For the first time in the series the hom of the homer was heard. The Soston hitters got the range of the short field stands in center and sent three balls hartling there for the circuit. Hosper got two of the home ray smakes and Lowis another for Baston.

The Philadelphia powers valiantly tried to meet the invoders at the home ray another the home full to the forth hat here the heavy firing of the home find space. Landerus lifted one high over the right field wall in the fourth hat here the heavy firing of the home folks enhed and for the last five Innings there was never a threat of Philadelphia tayles. The short ferees of the little Philly park confidently leaked forward as a benefit to the home players proved in the end their undaing.

Doctor Roach praised the work being done by the Epworth league throughout the country and his cloquent style of delivery charmed the large audience. He explained that it was the duty of league members to carry the word of God to the skek and dying and to show and point out the way to the gloties of everlaining life.

Continuing he said in part: "The young people in the Epworth league are performing an evangelistic part in the church that is of vast import.
